Excerpt: . . . 9 (BLM), and the Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), the Department provides assistance to, cooperates with and, in some cases, co-manages wildlife with states to ensure healthy, viable wildlife populations. While the Department recognizes that the states possess primary responsibility for management of resident fish and wildlife within their borders, to successfully combat CWD we must employ an approach that recognizes the varied roles of Federal and state agencies In this vein, the Department conducts basic and applied research into the biology and management of this disease, provides wildlife-related laboratory services, and offers technical advice and assistance to our partners We recognize that we must also work closely with private landowners and incorporate their needs into surveillance strategies and outbreak responses. In an effort be good neighbors, proper land stewards, and to provide assistance to the states, the Administration requested a total of 3. 8 million in their Fiscal Year 2004 budget request for CWD efforts If funded at the requested level, USGS will expand research and deliver technical assistance and pertinent biological information about the disease to both Federal and state agencies The Park Service will continue monitoring and surveillance and will establish a CWD Response Team, modeled after the highly successful exotic plant management teams, to continue and expand on its ability to respond quickly and professionally to CWD issues in units of the National Park System The Fish and Wildlife...
